Matthieu LOUIS-JEAN is a student in Language Didactics at Université de Paris and has been interested in research since an academic exchange at UQAM (Canada) between 2019 and 2020. His degree in Linguistics and his master's degree in Language Didactics led him to discover the Linguistic Landscape Analysis, an almost unknown field of study in France, but which Florence MOURLHON-DALLIES has already developed through the participatory research program COVIDSCAPES.

Through this research, Matthieu LOUIS-JEAN helps to create training courses for future students in language didactics and for introductory research programs in doctoral schools.